Better Financial Decisions Start with Better Informed Small Business Customers

Highlights from the 2019 LexisNexis® U.S. Small Business Financial Inclusion Study

In the first study of its kind, 305 small businesses were surveyed to gain insight into their understanding of, and access to, funding to grow their businesses. Companies surveyed were defined as those earning up to $20M in annual revenue and have applied for funding in the last 3 years or intend to in the next 3 years.

With over 30 million small businesses in the U.S. and new businesses launching every day, financial institutions run the risk of excluding a sizable number of potential customers by not educating them on and providing options for funding.

Small and mid-size businesses (SMBs) in the U.S. continue to seek financial support from banks & lenders but are often left to turn to other means

Small businesses that haven’t applied for funding in the last 3 years have the most immediate plans to do so.

Businesses with <$100k in annual revenues are more likely to experience financial exclusion than others.

Owners of small businesses with less than $100K in revenues have much less willingness to provide bank account information, financial statements, or personal guarantees.
