Of all types of analytics solutions, fraud mitigation professionals are primarily using behavioral analytics, which represents a significant shift away from automated business rules and other less sophisticated methodologies.

Fraud occurs along the customer continuum and across many industries. By leveraging cross-industry data coupled with analytics-based solutions, fraud mitigation professionals can be better equipped to detect and combat fraud within their specific industries.